

Wheat is Due for Rise Commission Finds At Advisory Meeting

Russia Granted a 37-Million Bushel Quota, But Demands Twice the Amount—Delegates From U. S., Canada, Australia, Argentina.

London, Jan. 25 (AP).—The International Wheat Advisory Commission, opening its third meeting today, does not believe that Russia's allotment from the export quota allowed her will make much difference in the world situation.

A 37,000,000 bushel quota was granted Russia under the world pact. Russia demanded a quota twice that size.

Delegates representing the big four exporting nations—Canada, Australia, the United States and Argentina—believe that by the time the quotas expire July 31, Russia will hardly have exported the 37,000,000 bushel quota offered her, let alone the double quota demanded. Leaders estimate Russia has not exported more than 25,000,000 bushels already, and her shipping season is virtually over.

Abraham Gourevitch of Russia agreed today that the Soviet union has shipped only in moderate quantities. He told the Associated Press, however, that he believed the big four delegates were too sanguine in their view of the Russian situation. It is still too early, he thought, to determine Russia's needs.

An effort to effect an export agreement with Russia was attempted at the last session of the commission in a private discussion between Gourevitch and John Van A. MacMurray, United States minister to Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, commission chairman. The conversations at that time were futile, and in consequence the subject was brought up again at today's private sitting of the commission.

It was brought out today that the statistical position of wheat is regarded by the commission as much stronger, especially in the United States where winter wheat has been unfavorable for winter wheat.

From a world viewpoint, conditions in the United States are the brightest in years. It was disclosed that the United States will spread its already announced 7.2 per cent acreage reduction in winter wheat to 3.5 per cent by application of the allotment plan to spring seeding, leaving only 5.5 per cent to be attained by supplementary measures in order to reach the pledged 15 per cent reduction under the international agreement.

Present signs point to Canada as the world's greatest exporter. Although under the law of averages, the Dominion is due a bumper crop, indications at present are for a normal crop. Canada has not yet taken steps to reduce her wheat acreage, but provincial governments have agreed with the Dominion government on the necessity of acreage reduction.

REPUBLICANS LAUNCH PROGRAM OF REFORMATION

New York, Jan. 29 (AP).—Republicans of New York state launched today a program of reformation within the state organization to meet the new policies and conditions created by the Democratic national administration.

Founded on the principle of "political preparedness," an advisory council and executive committee has been formed of leading Republicans in the belief that the Republican party "must be constructive."

"It must stand ready to present a tested and informed opinion on the great political issues that are arising daily," said a statement accompanying announcement of the program by the Republican builders, a party organization.

"These questions include the preservation of our national credit; they include the keeping of our currency on a basis which commands unquestioned confidence; they include the issues involved in a policy of taxation which fairly and wisely distributes the tax burden."

Members of the advisory committee are Charles D. Hilles and Mrs. Ruth Pratt, national committee members; W. Kingland Macy, Republican state chairman; Ogden L. Mills, President Hoover's secretary of the treasury; Representative James W. Wadsworth and Chase Melton, Jr., New York county chairman.

On the executive committee are Mr. Preston Davis, Mrs. George A. Wreth, president of the Women's National Republican Club; Arthur A. Ballantine, former under-secretary of the treasury; John Jay Hopkins, Walter S. Mack, Jr., Nicholas Roosevelt and Julian Mason.

POISON WHISKY HIGHBALL

TRIAL ON TODAY FOR DOCTOR

Greenwood, Miss., Jan. 29 (AP).—Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, 23-year-old child specialist, goes on trial today on a charge of killing Dr. John Preston Kennedy by giving him a poison whisky highball.

District Attorney Arthur Jordan announced the state will demand a verdict of guilty to the charge and defense Attorney A. F. Gardner said the state will have to prove it.

Officials See Possibility Of A Currency War With Great Britain

Government Will Employ What Secretary Morgenthau Terms Its $2,000,000,000 of "Blue Chips" Independently of England's Use of Her Equally Large Equalization Fund—Money Conflict Not Looked For Immediately.

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP).—Adviser dollar bill through late Saturday administration officials today carefully outlined plans for throwing the $2,000,000,000 dollar stabilization fund into gear, at the same time seeing possibilities of a stern currency war with Great Britain.

It is stated authoritatively that the treasury has reached no understanding with London on the relative position of the pound and dollar.

In other words, this government will employ what Secretary Morgenthau terms its $2,000,000,000 of "blue chips" independently of England's use of her equally large equalization fund.

When asked the direct question of whether a currency struggle with Great Britain is imminent, Morgenthau's frank reply was "I don't know."

In other quarters, however, it was indicated that while a money conflict stands as a possibility it is not looked for immediately. President Roosevelt is known to feel the tremendous United States gold reserve and the size of the stabilization fund prepares this country for anything.

Treasury officials, mindful that the dollar strengthened materially abroad while congress debated the devaluation bill—a 44.95 to the pound figure prevailing over the week-end as contracts with the $5.10 level a few weeks ago—were ready to start using the fund as soon as it is handed them. The administration is believed to prefer the $5.10 figure.

There was a possibility today that the money bill might be in Mr. Roosevelt's hands by nightfall. All that remained was house agreement to senate amendments, and, since the President has opposed none of the alterations, little difficulty was anticipated.

Before jamming the 50 to 60 per

Dangerous Dillingers Confront Indiana Men

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 29 (AP).—Defiant even behind jail bars, the "Dangerous Dillingers" of Indiana today confronted a small army of midwestern peace officers who had moved in on this city over the week-end intent on "getting their man."

Backed by Governor B. B. McCreary's promise that they can have John Dillinger, gangster chieftain, and his henchmen, Indiana authorities expedited extradition papers to the governor in Phoenix and looked over the jailed men they have accused of a series of robberies and slayings.

Three Indiana officers—Police Chief Nicholas Makar of East Chicago; Sheriff Carroll Holley of Lake county; R. G. Estill, Lake county prosecutor; and Robert Wilgus, an eye witness of an East Chicago bank robbery, headed the parade of authorities who have claimed the outlaws.

Clarence Houston, Jimo county, Arizona, attorney, said extradition may prove slow, as he expected Dillinger to throw every possible obstacle into the way. Conflicting claims of Indiana and Ohio have been ironed out, he said, and this may help speed proceedings.

State Seeks Proof Of John Factor's Story

Chicago, Jan. 29 (AP).—Testimony designed to corroborate John Factor's story of his kidnapping was the objective of the state today in its attempt to convict Roger Touhy and three associates as Factor's abductors.

Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley indicated the prosecution hoped to accomplish this, in part at least, through the testimony of Mrs. Clara Sezech.

Mrs. Sezech, the state contends, was the cook in the house where Factor said he was held a captive during most of the twelve days he remained in the hands of the kidnapers who received $75,000 in ransom money before they released him.

With the exception of Edward McFadden, all of the defendants have been identified by Factor. In addition to McFadden and Touhy there are Albert Kator and Gustav Schaefer.

J. J. FINERTY SPEAKER AT SCHOOL CONCOMENCEMENT

One of the best speakers at the Grammar School Concomencement last Friday at the Kingston High School was John J. Finerty of School No. 5 who recited "Cheer Up, Laddie," written by Dennis A. McCarthy. Through an error the name of the author but not the young man who so well presented the author's writing was given in Saturday's report of the commencement exercises.

Many Voice Feelings In Death of Abraham W. Hoffman Sunday

Expressions of Sympathy and Tribute Four in an Death of Managing Editor of The Freeman Become Known.

Expressions of sympathy and tribute were heard on all sides this morning as the death of Sunday of Abraham W. Hoffman, managing editor of The Freeman, became generally known. There were so many who voiced their feelings in Mr. Hoffman's death that it would be impossible to print them all, but a number of them have been recorded. They follow:

Jan. 29, 1934.

The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y.

We join with those members of his family and those of The Freeman who knew him so well in mourning the death of Abraham W. Hoffman.

WALTER T. BROWN,
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press.

It was with profound regret that a man of the highest type, as Abraham W. Hoffman was, should pass away at the height of his career.

I have known Mr. Hoffman since 1884, about which time he was the editor of the Rosendale Star. I was one of his newsboys. He was a most honorable, thoughtful and kindly man. He was always thoroughly interested in his work. In later years he proved himself to be a keen reporter and an able and substantial editor in the City of Kingston.

His loss is deplorable. I extend to his family my heartfelt sympathy.

J. ALLAN WOOD.

Although my acquaintance with Mr. Hoffman was not intimate, it was not possible for anyone to be active in civic or political affairs in the city without gaining a knowledge of the man and an appreciation of him. He was keenly interested in the life of the city; his experience and foresight lent great value to his opinion on any question of interest to its welfare; his attitude was always a progressive one.

His death marks the passing of a leader, whose loss is distinctly the loss of the entire community.

BERNARD A. CULLOTON, City Judge.

Senator Arthur H. Wicks said this morning, "I feel a sense of deep personal loss in the death of A. W. Hoffman. He was a true friend and a man to whom I turned for advice in important matters. His death has removed from the community a man of great ability, sound judgment, human understanding and one who had the real welfare of his fellow citizens at heart."

Mr. Hoffman's death will be mourned by a wide circle of real friends. Not only journalism, but the entire city has suffered a severe loss, for which I am deeply sorry.

Mr. Hoffman was always keenly interested in the welfare of Kingston, its institutions, its people. A straight, clear, honest thinker, he was entirely devoid of sham and artifice. He sought the truth and spoke it frankly on public questions. He was one of those rare individuals who had the courage of his convictions.

I shall always gratefully remember Mr. Hoffman as a good friend, a wise counselor, a man who always personified for me the qualities of rugged and unimpeachable honesty. We can all afford to lose such a man as this at any time, but especially so in these days.

To the bereaved, I extend my sincerest sympathy.

CONRAD J. HEISELMAN,
Acting Mayor.

"In the death of Mr. Hoffman, Kingston has lost one of its outstanding newspaper men," said Philip Elting, head of the Republican party in Ulster county, this morning. Mr. Elting said he had been acquainted with Mr. Hoffman since the early nineties and had held him in greatest respect. "Mr. Hoffman was a man of keen intellect, and as an editor he had always been very fair in discussing public affairs. His death is a distinct loss to the community."

"Mr. Hoffman was one of the most brilliant men I have ever known," said County Treasurer Arthur Rice, "and in his death the newspaper field has lost one of its outstanding figures. Mr. Hoffman was not only an able newspaper man, but he was one of the leading men of the community, and his loss will be deeply felt not only by the city but the county at large."

"In the death of Mr. Hoffman, Kingston has lost one of its outstanding men," said Sheriff John H. Saxe this morning. "As a newspaper man he was one of the leading editors of the state, and a man whose loss will be keenly felt, not only by the newspaper fraternity but the city and county at large."

QUEEN RIDES HIGH

Queen Mary Rides on Beer Wagon Following Car Wreckage.

Cambridge, Eng., Jan. 29 (AP).—Percy Timmons, who works for a brewery, drove into town this morning.

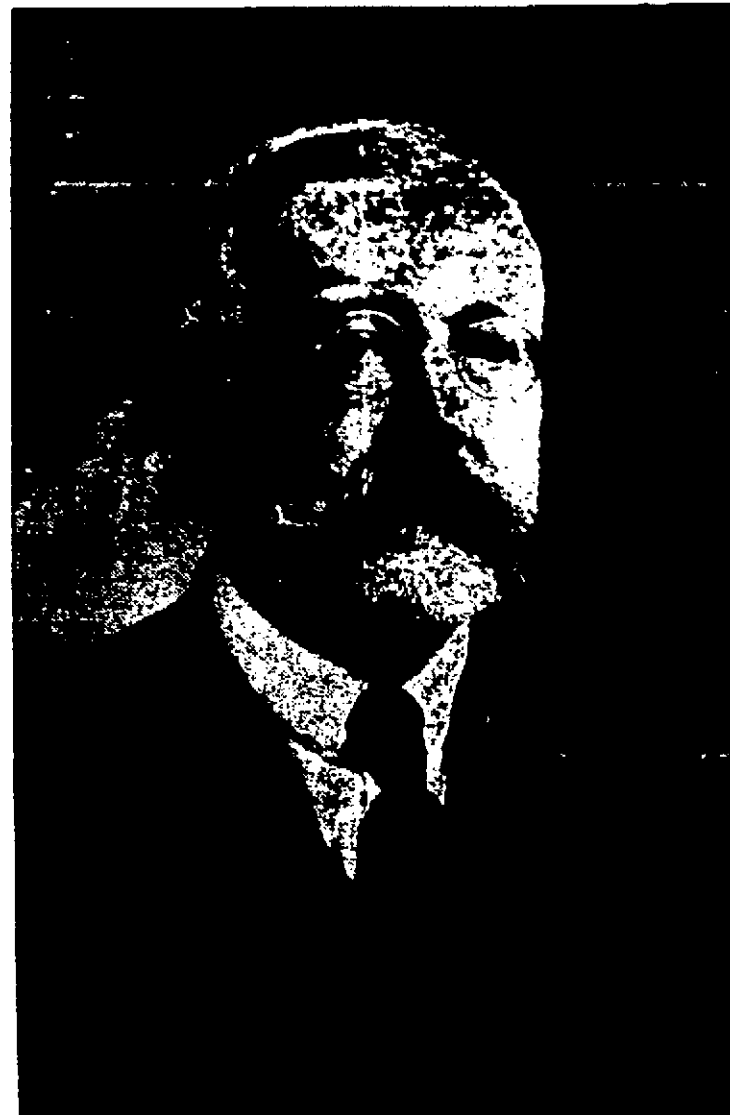

The townsfolk stared in amazement from the sidewalks for Queen Mary rode with him.

Her automobile had broken down between Ely and Cambridge while she was motoring from Sandringham to shop for antiques.

Timmons offered his aid. The queen accepted.

Abraham W. Hoffman, Managing Editor Of The Freeman, Died Sunday Morning

ABRAHAM W. HOFFMAN

Succumbed To Heart Disease. Was Veteran Newspaper Worker

Was Managing Editor of The Freeman for 16 Years—Spent His Entire Life in Newspaper Work—His Death a Distinct Loss to the Community.

The Freeman will go to press at 1:45 on Wednesday in respect to Mr. Hoffman and to allow its employees to attend his funeral.

Abraham W. Hoffman, for many years managing editor of The Freeman, died Sunday morning, January 28, at his home, 143 Fair street, after an illness of considerable length. For 38 years Mr. Hoffman, as a member of the editorial staff of The Freeman, was faithful in all his duties and true to every obligation of the paper, stressing the mission of The Freeman as a newspaper of community service. A notable journalistic career of half a century in Ulster county, which upheld the highest standards of that profession, has come to a close with the death of our late associate.

The community has also lost a true friend and a loyal worker in the demise of this genuine citizen. Every worthy institution and every good cause in the city and county has lost a real supporter of every project for the welfare and development of the community and an earnest worker in every movement for the betterment of humanity. It would be impossible to estimate the great influence he wielded throughout the city and the territory that lies within the circulation of this paper. He was a life of great usefulness in all worthwhile things.

Mr. Hoffman was an able writer, fair in his judgments, honorable, conscientious and energetic. He at all times carried out to the fullest the exacting code of newspaper ethics in spirit, as well as in letter. He never violated a confidence in his 50 years of newspaper work in Ulster county or never knowingly caused to be printed anything untrue or misleading. In unpleasant incidents he sought to spare feelings and gave great consideration to the unfortunate. He never essayed the role of a crusader or uplifter but he labored untiringly for the right, for justice and for good.

As chief of the editorial department he was in touch with the very heartbeats of the community and was deeply interested in all matters relating to the community and its citizens. Mr. Hoffman was also widely known throughout the state in newspaper circles. He had a reputation for putting into his writings and in presenting the news something of his own personality.

It would be impossible to estimate the influence he wielded or to list the accomplishments he helped bring into reality, through the agency of this paper in his many years of active service as a news gatherer and editor.

Possessed with rare insight, Mr. Hoffman's counsel was sought by many people in all walks of life and he not only gave cheerfully of his talents and time but also of his finances. His death is a distinct loss to the community.

Mr. Hoffman was not only a co-worker but a friend, ever loyal, helpful and kindly and his associates in The Freeman feel in his passing a deep personal loss. His presence in the office was both an inspiration from the past and a stimulant for the future.

The funeral of Mr. Hoffman will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Ulster Park Reformed Church. Interment will be made in Pleasant View Cemetery, Ulster Park. Friends wishing to view the remains may do so on Tuesday evening between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock at his late home, 143 Fair street.

Mr. Hoffman was born March 11, 1846 at Bloomington, town of Rosendale, the son of Harvey and Rachel (nee Weaver) Hoffman. He was married in 1892 to Miss Rebecca C. Shaw of Wittenberg. Mrs. Hoffman died in 1927. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Melvin Chubbuck of Ulster Park and a son, Frederick Hoffman of Kingston, also three grandchildren, Helen R. and Horace M. Chubbuck of Ulster Park and Virginia Louise Hoffman of the city.

Mr. Hoffman had been connected with various newspapers in Kingston and vicinity since 1884, and with the exception of an interval of two years, from 1893 to 1900, had been in the employ of The Freeman since 1896 in various capacities.

For a number of years he was managing editor of The Freeman and president of the Kingston Publishing Company, engaged daily in the performance of his duties until the performance of his duties until he was incapacitated early in October, 1933, by a severe attack of heart disease, which confined him to his home. For upwards of 20 years he had been a member of Ulster Lodge, No. 100 of the Kingston Rotary Club.

Subzero Weather Gripped Kingston

Following January Thaw of Sunday the Temperature Dropped Suddenly That Night and Subzero Weather Prevailed—Auto Drivers Found Difficulty in Starting Cars.

Intermittent showers of rain fell throughout the day on Sunday, and the snow that had fallen on Saturday rapidly disappeared, leaving the ground bare, except in spots where the ice had not been removed from previous storms. The moderate weather continued during the early evening and then shortly after 9 o'clock the temperature began dropping and streets became a glare of ice.

During the night it grew steadily colder and at 6 o'clock this morning thermometers about town registered as low as 4 degrees below zero, and the thermometers registered close to zero all morning today.

Automobiles when they went after their cars this morning had considerable difficulty in starting, owing to the extreme cold weather. In some cases the starter failed to turn the engine over and many drivers gave up in disgust the job of trying to start their cars.

This morning pedestrians faced a stiff, chill breeze that swept through the streets. Debris that had been covered over by the snow of Saturday was whirled through the air by the chilly wind and walking was extremely disagreeable.

The old time weather prophets who had foretold that this would be a mild winter have retired from public view. In fact they retired the first part of the winter and have not been seen since.

Severe Fire Breaks Out During Indiana Storm

Anderson, Ind., Jan. 29 (AP).—Fire which broke out here early this morning destroyed the Indiana Bell Telephone building and several adjoining buildings with an estimated loss of several hundred thousand dollars.

The fire which was believed to have started in the telephone building spread quickly as it was fanned by a heavy wind.

The blaze first was discovered about 1:30 a. m. and at 6:30 it still was burning. Calls were sent to nearby cities for help and at least one fire truck from Muncie was reported to have answered the call.

The bitter cold of a blizzard which struck the state yesterday hampered the firemen in their efforts to combat the fire. The temperature was near the zero mark.

Treasury Receipts.

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP).—The position of the treasury January 26, was: Receipts, $27,697,144.54; expenditures, $40,558,553.28; balance, $497,784,732.42; customs receipts for the month, $22,663,794.23. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) were $1,657,941,667.30; expenditures, $2,492,347,651.20, including $1,864,761,442.78 emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $1,835,406,624.90.

12 Below Zero Forces Divers to Quit Work In Search for Dead

Four Nuns And a Man Driver Sought At Bottom of Canal At Black River Following Car Plunge Sunday—Second Test in Three Years At Same Spot For One Driver.

Watertown, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP).—Lack of light and a temperature of 12 degrees below zero forced two divers from Ogdensburg to await the arrival of dawn today before exploring a canal at Black river for an automobile in which there was little doubt were four nuns and a man driver.

Grappling hooks failed to catch the car and the gates to drain the canal were frozen fast. The position of the automobile, which tore through a stretch of guard rail yesterday and rolled down an embankment into 20 feet of water, was located by oil rising to the surface.

The four nuns, all of them members of the faculty of the Augustinian Academy at Carthage, left the mother house at 4 p. m. on a trip that should have taken less than an hour.

The nuns and their names before entering the convent were: Sister Gabriel, Mary Giffin of Carthage, principal of the academy; Sister Alphonsus, Margaret Kenney of Philadelphia, Pa.; Sister Angela, Emma Walsh of Lowell, N. Y., and sister Christina, Salde Halligan of Scranton, Pa.

The driver of the automobile was Martin O'Keefe of Carthage. He has a brother John, of Utica.

A letter written by Sister Gabriel for her brother, Charles Giffin, of Utica, which she apparently had not had the chance to mail, was found in the canal against a drainage grate where it had been carried by the current.

One of the divers called to the scene recovered a body three years ago from an automobile that plunged into the canal at the same spot, which is 18 miles from here. Since then a fence has been erected.

Who Knows John Kennedy?

Mayor C. J. Heiselman received a letter today from Jennie R. Blackwell of 12 South 15th street, Harrisburg, Pa., asking for information regarding John Kennedy and his wife, Blanche, who formerly resided at 25 Downs street. She wrote that they were dear friends of her and were frequent correspondents but that she had not heard from them in several years. The Kennedys are not listed in the latest issue of the city directory.

NO WONDER 'BLUE COAL' IS AMERICA'S BIGGEST SELLING HOME FUEL

Delighted Users Tell Their Friends and Whole Neighborhoods Switch to 'blue coal'

Policeman Saves $45 and Gets Wonderful Heat

WITH one 'blue coal' enthusiast telling another of the merits of this top quality, trademarked Pennsylvania hard coal—is it any wonder that 'blue coal' is the biggest selling home fuel in America today?

For example, here's what one 'blue coal' fan, Officer Timothy Meegan of Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"Our family has so many expenses that we have to save money every way we can. So I am writing to tell you how glad I am that I bought 'blue coal' last year to heat my house with. It gave wonderful heat and saved us $45."

Thousands of others tell the same story of better heat for less money with 'blue coal'. That's because 'blue coal' burns so steadily and com-

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

The Awakened Dream
A Good Man, Anyway

Portland, Ore.—All the beds were out in white breeches and red coats for the Multnomah and Portland Hunt Club's fox hunt today. They couldn't find any foxes to be chased, so they imported a coyote.

The coyote was tossed from a box. The hounds bayed. The coyote took a drink and went back to his box. The hunters went home.

Historical Mystery

Denver—Zoo officials have a suspicion a "blessed event" has occurred in the grizzly bear department but they are too timid to try for confirmation.

Lady Yellowstone took to her den and after a few days of silence and inactivity she's growing a challenge to all the world. Zoo superintendent Clyde Hill says it's a promising sign but he won't let any of his assistants investigate for fear they will be torn to bits.

If there are cubs he expects the lady will not introduce them to the world for a few months, as is the grizzly custom. The birth of grizzly cubs in captivity is very rare, Hill said.

He's The Scold:
Philadelphia—It's the male who does the nagging. James G. Rhoads, secretary of the Academy of Natural Sciences, explains that only the male bayside makes those "bayside remarks." The female, he says, utterly ignores the charge that "Katy did it." Katy did it.

And, anyhow, it's a case of charging rather than chastising. The male bayside expresses his opinion by scraping together the edges of his wings.

Prescription

Wilmington, N. Y.—Charged with drunken driving, John Brown, a negro chauffeur, protested:

"I'm not drunk. It's my nerves. I made me some medicine."

"What was in it?" Interposed the magistrate.

"Well, there was two aspirins, some salt and pepper, a little vinegar."

"Sixty days and $25 fine," prescribed the magistrate.

Aged in Mine

Chicago—A sign on a coal dealer's window some time may read: "Peechontas, aged in the mine, a blend."

Chicago's city sealer is drafting an ordinance to make it mandatory to advertise coal blends as such, just as whiskey blends must be so labeled.

Reason: Coal blends fool experts in fuel just as whiskey blends fool experts in taste.

Firemen Fired At

Evansville, Ind.—Firemen went to a fire and bullets began to fly.

Several hundred shots were fired while they were putting out a blaze in the office of Justice of the Peace James G. Barber, but they didn't realize the danger they were in until one of the bullets put out a lantern in Captain Anthony Stelligman's hands.

Explosions caused by heat of ammunition of the Evansville Revolver Club of which the justice is a member caused all the shooting.

Talks to Parents

Starting School
By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

The question of when to start a child in school is always a subject of deep and violent discussion. Tommy at 3 was sent to pre-school, Tommy made his debut in the first grade at 7. Edna started kindergarten at 4, and Rachel never went at all till she was 10. And yet, at 10, they were all in the same class at high school.

As far as book learning goes, the age at which a child starts school does not seem to make much difference. Perhaps Tommy and Rachel, who learned to read at home, had a head start in general culture and in ease of reading which they never lost, but for the rest, no one could have guessed by the time they entered high school that their training was not the same.

A child's social sense and his power of adjustment to a group may be benefited by early schooling, and children who have no brothers and sisters or playmates are probably greatly helped by some hours at school or kindergarten at an early age.

The child who has brothers and sisters, however, or who lives in a community where he is brought in touch with other children, is quite as well off for being kept at home at least until 8 and allowed to make his own contacts and receive his social training in an unrestrained atmosphere.

For even in the freest of so-called "play groups" there is bound to be supervision, whereas a child left to himself, without the interference of adults, learns to stand on his own feet.

Maybe he will have to be knocked down a few times until he gets a firm footing. When he finally finds himself he will be better able to take care of himself for having worked out the equation alone.

The Negro's Immunities

The negro's immunities differ with locality. In America he has shown more immunity than the whites to malaria, yellow fever, measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria. He is largely free from hemorrhoids and varicose veins; but he is more susceptible to tuberculosis, diseases of the heart, lungs and kidneys, and to influenza.

The first 30 days Are the hardest—

HERE January is almost gone and if one of your resolutions was to operate in the New Year on a family budget plan, you have already experienced many of the temptations to abandon it. Indeed, the first 30 days are the hardest for budgeteers!

It takes courage and patience and careful planning to live by the budget. There's no question about that! And one of the most vital essentials is careful buying.

The first principle of careful buying is daily study of the advertisements in your newspaper. Within its columns the trade of the world parades before your door, in those moments when you are considering your own needs, at the time you can balance your desires and your resources. You can make comparisons—pause, consider, decide at your own convenience!

Nothing can be more helpful to you in making your dollars go farthest than the opportunities and economies revealed to you through the advertisements in this newspaper.

Boats 3000 B. C. Were Constructed of Planks

Shipbuilding, says the Washington Star, is one of the most ancient of the arts. Egyptian drawings, dating probably from about 3000 B. C., show boats constructed of planks, having sails as well as oars. From ancient sculptures it appears that the ships of the Greeks and Romans were propelled by wind and oar and were built with hull, ribs and planking, strengthened crosswise by benches on which the rowers sat.

The Phoenicians were probably the most skillful mariners of ancient times, and at a very early period had developed a type of war galley. The Vikings of Norway used ships of considerable strength of frame, but very light draft. The European nations steadily improved in shipbuilding, and the oar was gradually superseded by the sail. Larger and speedier vessels were required for the development of commerce. The development of shipbuilding as a science, however, may be said to date from the middle of the nineteenth century and to have been a direct result of the use of iron and steel in ship construction and the application of steam to propulsion.

Sea Shell Is Scurvy

A sea shell is considered scurvy. It is not that, however, but, instead, the bottom is scurvy. It has a modified sand-bag effect built in the fore part of the bottom of the boat, which tapers down so that the bottom of the after part of the boat is practically flat.

Australia to Get Cook's Cottage

CAPTAIN COOK'S cottage at Great Ayton, England, has been purchased by the government of Victoria, Australia, and will be re-erected in Melbourne and preserved as a memorial. Our photograph shows workmen dismantling the cottage and measuring and marking the stone slabs. Even the fry on the house will be moved to Melbourne.

Pronunciation of "Humble"

Dictionaries give the proper pronunciation as "humble," with "h" sounded, adding that the form "humble" was formerly used, but rarely heard now.

Shrimps Are Prolific

A shrimp spawns but once in its life. Science News Letter states, but it may produce as many as 500,000 eggs in this single reproductive period.

Many Voice Feelings In Death of Hoffman

real and deep. I have lost one of my closest friends, who knew my feelings but loved me in spite of it.

Although I did not see eye to eye politically I considered Mr. Hoffman one of the ablest newspaper men in the state of New York," said Harry E. Schirick, leader of the Democratic party in Ulster county. Mr. Hoffman, said Mr. Schirick, was not only an able editor but he was one of the city's most representative citizens, and in his death the city has sustained a distinct loss.

A. Gorman, president of Rose & Gorman says: "In the passing of A. W. Hoffman Kingston has lost one of its most useful citizens and the business world of this city perhaps has lost its most sought for adviser. Mr. Hoffman possessed a keen business mind and his ability and advice were always at the call of any demand looking for the improvement of the business, industrial or social life of the city. The sheer force of his personality convinced everyone who met him that he was at all times actuated by the highest ideals of business ethics. He not only believed thoroughly in the principles of the Golden Rule, but his every day's work was with him a vindication of that principle. In these days that is so small accomplishment. Every business house in Kingston will miss him no less than The Freeman, for to everyone his advice and sympathetic counsel were a tower of strength. We shall not see his like again."

County Judge Frederick G. Traver: "I have known A. W. Hoffman for many years and respected him as a very able newspaper man, one of the best along the Hudson River. In all my dealings with him I found him always the son of a gun. I feel that the community sustains a distinct loss in the passing of Mr. Hoffman. He was not only a good newspaper man, but a good neighbor and a good friend."

OFFICE OF THE CITY CLERK
City of Kingston, New York
I feel that in the death of Mr. Hoffman the city has lost an asset and a personality hard to replace. His contact with the public through The Freeman gave him an insight into municipal affairs which made him a valuable adviser, especially so because his advice was given in the interests of the city were concerned, free of political bias or partiality. I shall personally miss him greatly.
E. J. DEMPSEY.

Alfred Schmid, president of the Kingston Rotary Club said: "Abe Hoffman was one of the most beloved and respected members of the Kingston Rotary Club. He was very active in the affairs of Rotary and very ably filled the office of president a few years ago. He was especially interested in boys' work and in an unassuming way contributed generously to its support. It is with deep regret that we learn of his death."

Harry Halverson, president of the Kingston Kiwanis Club said: "I held Mr. Hoffman in high regard as a newspaper man and my relations with him had always been the most cordial. As president of Kiwanis I extend the sympathy of all our members to the Kingston Rotary Club in the loss of a past president and one of their outstanding members."

"I always had the highest opinion of Mr. Hoffman, both as a man and as an editor," said C. E. Wonderly of the Wonderly Company. "In all my dealings with Mr. Hoffman I found him a man of his word, and a man whose opinion merited the highest consideration."

Bremer Pleads With Kidnapers of His Son

St. Paul, Jan. 29 (AP).—Sixty-seven year old Adolph Bremer, III and worried, today pleaded with the kidnapers of his son, Edward G. Bremer, for some sign that the missing man is still alive.

As the twelfth day passed since a gang seized the younger Bremer, without any definite word of his fate, the elder Bremer apparently was becoming more concerned, and begged for a contact with the abductors.

He made public a statement yesterday in which he said: "Please communicate with us. We want our son back. We are ready to negotiate and the money is ready if you will only tell us where to meet you."

(Signed) "ADOLPH BREMER." Even federal operatives of the department of justice have been unable to span the sea of silence that has widened between the abductors and the family since the first ransom note and a telephone call were received by Walter Magee, wealthy contractor and friend, a few hours after Bremer was spirited away.

SON OF SUPERVISOR ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Gordon Boice, 18, son of Supervisor Pratt Boice of Lake Karline was shot by a companion, Albert Montavani, a neighbor, while the two were out after rabbits in the woods west of Route 9-W near Lake Karline, Saturday afternoon. Gordon was taken to the Kingston Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. F. A. Johnston. An X-ray showed that 49 of the No. 6 shot had entered the lad's right thigh and two more had pierced the left thigh. The shot were imbedded so deeply that no attempt was made to remove them. His condition was reported to be good this morning and no serious results are anticipated, although he will be laid up for several weeks.

NRA INCREASES PAYROLLS 190 MILLIONS IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 29 (AP).—The NRA has meant a payroll increase in Manhattan alone at the rate of $190,000,000 a year, Nathan Straus, Jr., said today.

Straus, state director of the National Emergency Council, said the results of a survey just completed have disclosed that NRA has created 291,100 jobs in Manhattan. Data concerning other boroughs of New York city will be made public later.

The figures, based on answers to a questionnaire and upon personal investigations, showed that retail establishments added 33,100 employees and increased payrolls 17 per cent or $49,000,000 annually; that the wholesale trade took on 23,000 with an increased payroll of $20,000,000, and that manufacturers hired 145,000 new employees and boosted their payrolls $126,000,000 annually.

RUBY GENERAL STORE BURNED TO GROUND

The general store at Ruby, formerly conducted by James E. Snyder, but for several years past by Joseph Gruber, burned to the ground between 8 and 9 o'clock Sunday night. Mr. Gruber and family occupied living apartments in the same building and all their household goods and clothing were burned, along with the contents of the store.

The Centerville fire company responded to an alarm and succeeded in saving the barn and outbuildings. The fire was first discovered when Mr. Gruber, hearing a noise in the hall and investigating found the hallway in flames. He believes it must have started from a three-way switch, which was located in the hall.

Crumbling Ice Floes Endanger Byrd Ship

Byrd's Prediction Is That Little America May Yet Be at Water's Edge If Ice Continues to Go Out of Bay As at Present.

Bay of Whales, Antarctica, Jan. 27 (Delayed) (Via Mackay Radio) (AP).—The flagship of the second Byrd Antarctic expedition was in a race with time today in a search for a firm unloading dock.

With three days of fair weather and a good mooring place needed to complete the job of unloading supplies, the flagship was driven from its dock early today when great masses of ice crumbled while unloading was in full swing.

Quick action saved both the ship and her crew from possible serious consequences. The situation remained critical because the flagship was approaching the deadline set for oil consumption in these waters. She must start back soon.

Set back in the work of unloading and transporting the supplies to Little America by this third mishap of the kind in six days, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd said:

"If the ice keeps going out at this rate, Little America may yet be at the water's edge. . . . In the whole twenty miles of coast in this bay there is apparently not a single stable place."

The contact with the unloading berth was broken today just when the work seemed to be going ahead smoothly after a mooring had been made following 55 hours of similar cruising and drifting about the bay.

Most of the stores landed at a cache about 100 yards from the edge of the ice had been hauled away by the 47 men marooned ashore, but 25 bales of hay were lost when the ice crumbled. The hay had been intended for the three cows and one bull taken on the expedition.

Mrs. Roosevelt Rules On Liquors and Wines

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP).—A statement that no distilled liquor will at any time be served in the White House, but that "there will be no fixed rules as to the serving of wine," was issued today by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

When wines are served, Mrs. Roosevelt said, they will be simple wines, "preference being given to American wines."

Mrs. Roosevelt's complete statement follows: "By the 15th of February, it will become legal in the District of Columbia to serve wine. No distilled liquor will at any time be served in the White House. There will be no fixed rule as to the serving of wine, but when served there will be, of course, simple wines, preference being given to American wines."

Two Men Die in Fire Which Razed Troy Club

Blaze of Unknown Origin Destroyed Clubhouse of Veterans of Foreign Wars—One Man Escaped With Burns—Loss $5,000.

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP).—Two men were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed the clubhouse of Troy Post 452 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

A third was burned about the face and hands as he escaped from the second story room in which they had been sleeping.

The dead men were tentatively identified as Johnny Sweeney, 65, the watchman, and Arthur Martin, unemployed baker of this city.

James Kenny of Watervliet escaped with burns. All were veterans and members of the post.

The building, the property of the post, was destroyed with a loss estimated at $5,000. It formerly was the historic Laureate Boat Club, the home of a club that made rowing on the Hudson famous.

Jim Ten Eyck, former Syracuse University crew coach, was one of its prominent members. The building was on the shore of the river at the foot of Glenn avenue, on the grounds of the old New York State Baseball League where Johnny Evers and other famous stars got their start.

The building had been closed for the night and the fire, which started at 1:30 a. m., was of unknown origin.

Daladier New Head Of French Cabinet

Paris, Jan. 29 (AP).—Edouard Daladier, former premier, was assigned today to head the French government.

President Lebrun gave him the task of forming a "public safety cabinet" for a vigorous housecleaning of financial scandals and for reorganization of the shaken public confidence in the government.

Daladier, it was understood, planned to take the portfolio of foreign affairs himself, ousting Joseph Paul-Boncour. To give the cabinet a strong position to face Germany in the disarmament struggle, it was said he would name the ministries of war, navy and air into a national defense ministry. The new cabinet will supplant that of Camille Chautemps, which resigned Saturday amid rioting and demonstrations in all parts of France as a result of the Bayonne municipal parashoot scandal. Daladier, minister of war in the Chautemps government, was named today after three others had declined to accept the office of premier.

A. W. HOFFMAN

The Freeman today pays tribute to its managing editor, Abraham W. Hoffman, whose death Sunday morning will leave a gap hard to fill. Mr. Hoffman was associated many years with this paper in various capacities, long being its editorial director. His passing brings to a close one of the most notable lives in Ulster county newspaper circles, a life spent in service to his paper, and through the paper to his fellow man.

While it was through The Freeman that Mr. Hoffman was best known, he was a witty speaker and lecturer, an excellent writer and interested in the social, business, civic, and political welfare of Kingston and Ulster county. Often his counsel was sought and his judgment was respected. He was always fair to everyone that came in contact with him and he had a reputation for squareness that brought everlasting respect.

The Freeman is not alone in regretting his passing, merchants and professional men alike, will mourn that they may no longer turn to him for advice. There are few in business in this locality who have not at one time or another come to consult with him.

Much of the success of this paper is due to his management, many of its friends are of his making. Its editorial policy was in a large part his, all departments felt his guiding hand. The Freeman joins with many others in every walk of life who will be saddened at his death, and more than that The Freeman has lost a friend.

KEEP OFFICES OPEN

The announcement that the plan followed by the Carey administration of closing the offices of the city clerk and treasurer during the noon hour, would be discontinued by the present city government was welcome news to a number of people who find that the noon hour is the most convenient time for them to visit the city hall to transact any business they may have.

Just why the offices were closed at noon hour by the Carey administration is unknown, but Acting Mayor Hesselman's announcement that they would remain open during his tenure of office has proved a welcome gesture, a number of people availing themselves of this opportunity to do business. Records of the advisability of keeping the offices open has shown that people do want to visit them during the noon hours, and the keeping of them open has been a distinct service to the people of Kingston.

MAKING THE ADVERTISER PAY.

In connection with Government control of industry a new and serious situation has arisen, which policy it held to, is likely to penalize manufacturers for advertising their products. The government group has suggested the plan that those firms which do not advertise be allowed by code to sell their products at a lower price than those who do advertise. The theory is that advertising is a part of selling expense and should be made a part of the cost of production. The theory follows out that no one should be allowed to sell goods below the cost of production, a contention with which no one disagrees. However, making advertising a part of the cost of production is fallacious. True, advertising is a part of selling expense, but no more so than other sales expenses such as salesmen and merchandising expenses.

To discriminate against the advertiser causes a situation which must be viewed with alarm. The advertiser who builds up consumer demand and acceptance for branded products, and the store which retains a monopoly of the market of advertising, are both in a distinct disadvantage if the law is adopted. Advertising may be said to be the life of the business of the advertiser. It may reduce the amount of selling effort to a minimum and in many cases it is the only way the goods of a business can be sold. It increases the volume of manufacturing, which in turn lowers the cost of production.

The plan if adopted, will of course mean a loss to the advertiser, but it will also mean a loss to the manufacturer and store selling advertised products, because other means of advertising the public will have to be found and such means will likely prove more costly than the present advertising-merchandising system.

The advertising-merchandising method of marketing has developed industry and increased employment through the widespread consumption of goods of various kinds. Through mass production it has lowered the cost of production of these products and brought them within the reach of the average consumer. To require the advertiser to sell his products at a price higher than the non-advertiser will mean a loss in advertising and consequently a loss in information to the consumer and the attending decrease in production and employment. Advertising, for the most part is reliable, and it should be worth a few cents to know what you are buying.

CROSS-EYES OR STRABISMUS

This distressing ailment, where one eye looks directly at an object and the other is turned elsewhere is now receiving much attention because there are so many cases which can be cured without surgery.

Cross-eye may be caused by a defective development of the eye which occurs after, not before, birth. Farsightedness, where the eye socket is short, and shortsightedness where the eye socket is long, both may be the cause of cross-eye, owing to the difficulty in focussing the vision on any object.

Sometimes a youngster or even a boy or girl in their teens will show no trouble with the eyes, not the slightest sign of cross-eye, until they begin to use the eyes more than usual and the strain on the eyesight brings out the weakness that was present all the time but did not show itself.

Cross-eye may be caused by some of the diseases of childhood or may be caused by infection.

Finally, cross-eye may occur from injuries at various kinds.

What about treatment?

The first thought in treatment is the use of "correcting" glasses, not only to correct the cross-eyes but to correct any other defect. All eye work or habits which cause much use of the eyes must be avoided. This is most important.

Where this is not sufficient, the use of correcting exercises has given excellent results. I spoke a few months ago of some new special exercises, developed in England, which are now being used in the Fifth Avenue Hospital in New York city.

The operations to correct cross-eye are of three kinds. The first is where the tendon or muscle is cut which releases it, just as the tendons in club foot and wry neck are divided to bring the foot or the head straight.

The second operation advances or brings forward the muscles of the eye. The third operation may shorten one muscle and lengthen the other.

In the hands of the skilled eye surgeon these operations give excellent results.

While it is true that cross-eye is outgrown in a few cases, this is not what usually happens. But fortunately a large number can be cured by the correcting glasses and exercises, and these should be persisted in for some time before operation is finally done.

However the operation as recommended and performed by the skillful eye surgeon is certainly worth the risk when the other methods have failed.

Chapter 18
 QUARREL

ORTEGA glanced toward the grimly battered hatch. The young man laughed again. "I know the gunboat was in these waters. I have a friend in the customs."

Grahame watched the vessel head toward the distant horizon. It occurred to him that Ortega's explanation was rather weak; also that he did not seem anxious whether Grahame believed it or not. The attitude of the big Mexican and his crew had been one of reserve the previous day; today it seemed that they felt toward him a new familiarity.

Perhaps Grahame's indifference toward Ortega's inference that there was good reason for his wanting to evade civilization had something to do with their affability. It did not perturb him at all. Ortega's operations were illegal, they did not concern him, and it was none of his business.

At dusk they continued their journey. Once in the night Grahame was awakened by the stopping of the engine. For a half hour they rocked motionlessly on the sea as the lights of a steamer passed a mile or two distant, in the opposite direction. Grahame shrewdly suspected it was the gunboat patrolling back the way it had come.

The next day they rounded Cape Catoche and sailed south. They passed some low-lying islands, and once several miles to their left a fruit liner overtook them and steamed on. It looked like a white gull hovering at horizon-level.

The day was uneventful. The crew took turns at the wheel, and Grahame and Ortega sat on the deck house and smoked. Grahame asked the big man when they would be at the island and was answered that it would be tomorrow, in the afternoon perhaps. Ortega seemed to be pondering.

"I was thinking," he said, "that your island would not be the place you want to go. It would be safer on the mainland."

Grahame smiled. "You told me it was unsafe on the mainland."

"But I have been thinking. I could use you at my hacienda. It would be hard work, often. And you could make some money."

"I have plenty of money," he said. "I caught Ortega looking at him appraisingly. 'Still a man can always use more money.'"

Why not go with Ortega, he thought. After all, his idea was not to remain at the island, but to use it as a base at which he could make inquiries as to the mainland back of the coast.

Those that sailed along these barren beaches must be acquainted with many queer types that wanted nothing better than to go unaccompanied and unquestioned.

"What is the interior like behind your place?" he asked.

Ortega shrugged his shoulders. "Nobody knows. No one has ever been there. Very dangerous."

Grahame made his decision. "I'll go with you to your hacienda," he said. "I won't promise to work for you, until I look it over. If I decide not to stay, I will pay you for my lodging and leave. All right?"

Ortega nodded and smiled a little as he looked at Grahame. "All right," he said.

Ahead of the launch a patch about a hundred yards in circumference showed yellow against the blue of the surrounding sea. Grahame thought it was a reef until the launch headed into it and stopped.

The crew threw canvas buckets overboard and hauled them in brimming with clear water.

Juan, the good-humored youngster, dipped a tin cup full and held it out to Grahame. "Fresco," he said. "It is fresh, drink."

Grahame drank. It was cool and fresh, decidedly below the temperature of the sea's surface. It had a slight taste of vegetation; Grahame thought it was very curious.

Ortega witnessed his amazement and offered an explanation. "There are many such along the coast here. It is the mouth of a stream that empties out from the land under the sea. It is like a well in the bottom of the sea. The men like to drink it because it is cooler than the water in the casks."

LAKE KATRINE.

Lake Katrine, Jan. 27.—The Lake Katrine Home Department will meet at the home of Mrs. John Gue, 41 Derrebacker street, Kingston, Thursday, February 1. New officers recently elected are Mrs. L. Shaw, president; Mrs. C. Saunders, vice-president; Mrs. L. Churchill, secretary; Mrs. H. D'Algo, treasurer.

Miss Dorothy Mayes is spending a few days with Mrs. C. Auchmoody.

Mrs. Charles Nichols, who has been ill with grip, is better.

He would have liked to have reached out and touched her shining hair. It was senseless to think about it. Here he was down along the coast of Quintana Roo, trying to forget her.

Excitement, adventure, were the caustics to apply to the wound she had dealt him. There was something in that country beyond the dull shore line that outsiders were not supposed to see. He was going in to look.

Langton's plane, buffeted by the southern hurricane, might have crashed in there. It was not beyond reasonable theory. Quintana Roo contained thousands of square miles that had not been inhabited since the dim centuries when pagan priests caused tall pyramids to be erected to their bloody gods. The wreckage of Langton's plane might well be hidden in there.

There might be other things hidden. He was going in soon to see.

THE launch slid between the roots of mangroves that gripped the shores of a lagoon which was like a narrow river except that the water was salt. They chugged along until they were two or three miles inland from the coast, when the passage widened into a lake several hundred yards in circumference.

They edged inward toward a small wharf extending at water level several yards into the lake. The water's edge back of the wharf had been cleared and in the clearing were several flimsy buildings of palm-thatch. The launch was tied up at the wharf and the hatch unbuttoned.

Grahame helped with the unloading. As the first case slid from the deck to the pier he uttered an exclamation. The size and weight of the case was unmistakable.

Ortega and his two helpers paused to watch him.

"Someone is going hunting, I see," he remarked dryly.

Ortega's reply was equally ironic. "In this country," he said, "there is always hunting."

The unloading was accomplished without further comment. Grahame estimated that in the cargo there were cases containing at least two hundred rifles and a substantial amount of ammunition. Sufficient, certainly, to equip quite a little army, as numbers went in these countries.

He was puzzled, however, to know what a band of men bent on making trouble could do in this isolated part of Mexico. In the first place, the territory hereabouts was uninhabited according to all reports. Even if the man-power were available, it would be impractical for them to strike through the jungles to the nearest civilized state, which was Yucatan.

Furthermore, it would not be strategic to dominate Yucatan, since that state was isolated, more or less, from Mexico proper. Grahame knew enough of revolutions and their technique, to appreciate that element. Why, then, this warlike equipment landed at this point?

Ortega brought up the subject that evening. "There are Indians in the interior here that wish equipment with which to defend themselves. I know what you are thinking. You think because you have heard rumors of revolution in Mexico, that these guns are for the revolutionists."

"It is not so. True, there is a revolution brewing just now,—that is why I avoided the gunboat the other day. They are on the watch for smuggled arms and it would be embarrassing for me to be searched. But this cargo is to be used solely for defense. I have brought many such. I have been well paid."

"How do they pay you?"

"With gold," replied Ortega shortly, "and other goods. In the morning we will leave and go farther south. I wish to pick up as much other cargo, and return to Progreso. When I return here, these cases will be gone and the payment will be in a place I know of."

"I would like to talk to these people who come for your shipment."

Ortega's voice was harsh when he answered. "You cannot do that. Even I never see them—only one man, whom I meet south of here at Puerto Morelos. It is there I pick up my other cargo that I take to Progreso."

STROKES OF GENIUS

by SAMUEL HENSON &amp; ALFRED PARKER

ORIGINALLY the noblest and most important temple in Rome, the Pantheon is the most perfectly preserved architectural work that has come down to us from Roman times. In 609 A.D., it was consecrated as the Church of Santa Maria Rotunda, and even now, it is often called La Rotonda.

The Pantheon was erected for Agrippa by Valerius of Ostia, 190 years ago. Destroyed by lightning, it was reconstructed 150 years later in its present form by the Emperor Hadrian. The 16 superb columns of the front porch were taken from the earlier structure. The circular hall is surmounted by an elaborate brick-work dome, 144 feet in diameter—the largest masonry dome in the world. There are no windows in the temple. All the light comes from the oculus, a round 27-foot opening in the roof.

The dome was covered originally by gilt bronze tiles, but these were carried off in the 7th century. The beautiful bronze statues and interior decorations have also disappeared. Otherwise, the building remains today just as it was 19 centuries ago.

The second highest mountain peak in the world is in the same chain as the highest, Mount Everest, namely, the Himalayas. It is called Kanchanganga, with an altitude of 28,255 feet. This peak is on the boundary between Tibet and Kashmir, India.

Battling before a crowd that jammed Firemen's Hall, Rosendale, the flame eaters of Manager Delaney put one over on Pete Brock's All Stars, but not until after the game went into an extra period, the score at the end of the set time being 32-21. The margin of victory for the Firemen was 3 points, final score in their favor being 38-35.

As the contest rolled into the closing three minutes, Gil Kelder, right forward of the Rosendale club, dropped in a field and foul. Jimmy Merritt tossed one through the hoop from the half stripe and Norm Niles put the finishing touches on the campaign in favor of the Delaney brigade. A field by Chilton and foul by Wood were the only points scored by the Stone Ridge representatives during the extended time.

A not argument came up during the game as the result of an incident that saw a woman in the balcony reach over and prevent from being registered what looked like a small field shot tossed in the team. He was awarded a foul by the referee because of the action. Chilton led the

Back To Boston By Pap

WITH JACK COOMBS, HE SHARES THE RECORD OF FIVE VICTORIES WITHOUT DEFEAT IN WORLD SERIES GAMES

Flashback a brand of defense that surpassed any exhibition they put up this season, the Jack Troy Luckies accomplished what other quintets of this vicinity failed at—they beat the Liberty Emeralds at home Saturday night. Final score of the skirmish, which teemed with action, was 44-29.

In favor of the club handled by "Dolly" Tasso, the manager with the big cigar, who puffed gleefully on the return trip from the mountain town and visioned a series with the winners of the set between the Rosendale Firemen and Pete Brock's All Stars.

After championship. Said Tasso as he talked of meeting the Firemen or Bruckman. "I think we can beat either of these clubs and although the statement may be out of order at this point in the season, there is no doubt in my mind but that the Luckies can take any combination over for the championship of Ulster county. Wait and see. Tasso is more than proud of the way the Luckies handled the big green team Saturday, especially of their defense and passwork which had the Emeralds baffled and the spectators cheering wildly for them, something unusual for the mountaineer fans who have seen their home team defeated only five times in three years. The victory for the Luckies was the worst setback the Sullivan county champs had chalked up against them since their overthrow by the House of David which won by 12 points.

Other quintets of this vicinity that tried to stop Liberty and failed were Pete Brock's All Stars and the Spinnys, two of the strongest combinations that could be found in this section, and which have their intentions set on winning the county championship this season.

The Stars.

Pete Schline, playing one of his best games at center, was high scorer for the Luckies. He made 13 points. Dan Joyce, who gave a wonderful exhibition handling the left guard position, was next in line with 12. Don Kelly, his mate, came in for lots of praise for the way he worked on the defense. Hodge did the main scoring for Liberty, making 11 points.

The victory over Liberty was the second of the season for the Troy men, who recently edged out the mountain cagers at White Eagle Hall. Friday night, the Luckies will play their regular weekly home game at the Delaware avenue court, meeting one of the most formidable clubs available. There will be two prelims and a dance.

The glass or glass was originally a wooden shoe or club, but later came to mean an overshoe. In 1898 there is the statement: "Galloshies are false shoes, or covers for shoes." The word is adapted from the French galoches, from low Latin galopodium, a wooden shoe.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

In turning the national amateur golf championship this year into an all-match play event at Brookline, Massachusetts, the United States Golf Association has taken over completely the right which of royal and ancient lineage.

It appears that the change of course to this year's two players loose in championship competition with six rounds of 18-hole matches packed into four days and as far as one can tell, the change is a method of conducting the championship is diametrically opposite to the ideas held during the reign of Robert Tyre Jones, Jr.

Jones personally never felt that an 18-hole match was a conclusive test and this opinion undoubtedly was reflected in the rather widespread criticism of "Black Wednesday," as the first day of amateur championship match play, comprising two 18-hole rounds, became known in golfing circles. Too much was left to chance and a few lucky shots in these single round matches, the critics argued.

The howls reverberated up and down the Pacific Slope in 1929 when the great Jones himself was knocked out in the opening round by Johnny Goodman, then just an unknown hitchhiking kid from Nebraska. Scarcely a tournament passed in which "Black Wednesday" did not produce a swift series of upsets in the ranks of championship favorites.

Battle Royal.

Under the new system, it will simply be one thing, a long free-for-all, just as the British championship has always been.

Jones bounced back several times before he finally broke through to capture the British amateur crown in 1930 and he has often remarked that he considered this tournament the toughest test he ever experienced. It is the only major title he failed to capture more than once.

From the standpoint of national interest, however, rather than the view of trying to make the tournament too precise a test of endurance as well as skill for the giants of amateur ranks, the all-match play system is undoubtedly better. It eliminates the somewhat superfluous qualifying process at the outset, during which the headaches are apt to be more numerous than on "Black Wednesday." It assures every district qualifier the right to swap strokes, man to man, for at least one round of match play, and that, after all, is the real object of the tournament.

Should "Seed" Stars.

Presumably the U. S. G. A. will adopt a "seeding" system again, in a field so big and unwieldy as will assemble at Brookline, although this would mark a departure from the fundamental of the "luck of the draw."

The recognized stars, however, seem entitled to some special consideration as an offset to being tossed to the mercies of the field. There will be enough surprises, anyway, and it would be fairer to "seed" such outstanding performers as George Dunlap, Johnny Goodman, Francis Ouimet, Max Marston, Lawson Little, Johnny Fischer, Ross Somerville, Jack Westland, Maurice McCarthy and Gus Moreland.
